Kurzbeschreibung Tim Dry's virtuoso memoir of a life in arts, rises and falls through the worlds of art school, mime and New Romantic pop, to the cinema of Star Wars and the theatre of Steven Berkoff, internationally-prized photography, a globetrottery of commercials and a career in literature. From a childhood encounter with a UFO to playing an alien monster in the cult film, Xtro; and from seeing The Beatles as a boy to working with Angie Bowie and performing in front of 100,000 people with Gary Numan, Tim Dry breaks into a theatre to see Kate Bush, makes a highwire appearance on stage with Duran Duran, photographs Mick Jagger; has a week-long near nude scene in a film with Ann-Margaret; encounters Her Majesty The Queen; takes on Baudelaire drug-for-drug in poetry adventure in Paris, and presents a food programme on Channel 4. All this and much, much more.

Synopsis "It's been a mostly amusing but sometimes frightening role, guest-starring in this strange performance called my life. The Beatles, Kate Bush, George Lucas, Mick Jagger, Bowie, Duran Duran, Gary Numan, Lindsay Kemp, Joan Collins, and Her Majesty The Queen have all figured in it somehow. And if you add sex, drugs, rock 'n' roll and a visit from a UFO, you'll see that I'm spilling beans of a very unusual kind. So come with me, fasten your brainbelt and take a trip with someone old enough to know better but young enough not to care". This work is waspishly funny, bizarre, self-deprecating, painfully honest, touching, intelligent, sharply-focused and fresh. Actor, mime, musician, photographer and once upon a time hippy Tim Dry tells his tales of 50 years of outrageous living in Britain.
