Leitfaden zur Lebenslust! Von Ben Schneider Diese Autobiographie ist ein Lehrbuch, wie man mit Hilfe von mehr oder auch weniger Glck sein Leben in die Hand nimmt. Dieses Buch hat mir sehr viel Freude gebracht, da sich bei jedem Kapitel schon bei dei den ersten Stzen zumindest ein Schmunzeln, wenn nicht ein Lcheln einstellt. Eher selten sind richtig traurige Passagen. Doch so ist das Leben dieses Autors. Er weiss es den jeweiligen Situationen anzupassen, seine Ehefrau zu lieben, seine Familie zu ehren, seine Freunde zu pflegen, seine mitunter harte Arbeit auszuführen. Jede seiner Lebensphasen meistert er grandios, seiner desto beispielhaften, positiven Einstellung wegen. Ich hatte das Glück und die Ehre diesen genialen Menschen, in Gegenwart seiner charmanten, herzlichen Ehefrau Clare, auf einer Reise durch Colorado kennenzulernen. Wenige Stunden in ihrer Gegenwart haben gereicht, sie als unvergessliche, und geachtete Freunde ins Herz zu schliessen.

Kurzbeschreibung Growing up in a small West Texas town, Henry S. Guthrie Jr. jumped from one unattainable goal to another with no idea how many life experiences awaited him. Now at eighty-four, the man known as Bub in Texas and Tex in Arizona and Elbows on US sports car racing tracks, has his fair share of stories from a rich and varied life, including door-to-door marketing in the 1940s, being stationed in Germany at the height of the Korean War, and marketing adventures in sixty-five different countries. Inspired by autobiographical snippets from his relatives that left him craving more, Guthrie set out to document his life in his complete collection of personal reflections, anecdotes, and unbelievable true stories. Written in a signature lighthearted style, readers of all ages will find valuable bits of wisdom, humor, and even some genealogical information scattered throughout this deeply personal narrative. Better yet, you'll receive words of advice from someone who grew up without getting old and still finds the fun in waking up each and every day even on Mondays.

ber den Autor und weitere Mitwirkende "Mostly retired, damn it" (his words), former internationalist and amateur race car driver, Tex Guthrie, 84, lives in Scottsdale ("red-roof heaven," he calls it) with Clare, his wife of fifty-six years. He regularly meets fellow retired racecar drivers for lunch when "the-older-I-get-the-faster-I-was" stories are exchanged and details of the latest technology in hearing aids are shared. Using his Spanish language skills, he often works with his friend, aviation icon Fred Ayres, to sell used agricultural aircraft to buyers in Latin America and Spain.
