

[Download pdf ebook] Ive Just Seen a Place I Cant Forget: Walking in the Footsteps of The Beatles (English Edition)

Ive Just Seen a Place I Cant Forget: Walking in the Footsteps of The Beatles (English Edition)

Von Colin Unwin

ebooks / Download PDF / *ePub / DOC / audiobook

DOWNLOAD

+

READ ONLINE

Produktinformation -Verkaufsrang: #1533980 in eBooksVerffentlicht am: 2013-03-04Erscheinungsdatum: 2013-03-04File Name: B00BP88JVS | File size: 47.Mb

Von Colin Unwin : Ive Just Seen a Place I Cant Forget: Walking in the Footsteps of The Beatles (English Edition) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Ive Just Seen

Kurzbeschreibung I was fourteen when I got a job in a garage. I was that passionate about pop music I was always getting in trouble for switching customers car radios on, to listen to the latest songs. For four years in the 1960s I went to the Oasis coffee bar in Manchester to listen to all the best bands and twice tried in vain to get in and listen to this up and coming group called The Beatles. Forty years later I was overcome by a great passion to find out where in Liverpools back streets those four lads grew up to become the biggest band in the world. While wandering the streets of Liverpool over a period of sixteen years my interest in The Beatles was noticed by somebody who worked for the National Trust and who encouraged me to take over the tenure as custodian at the Trusts John Lennon and Paul McCartney childhood homes. Some of the stories in this book are about The Beatles places I discovered and some are about living in the two iconic pop star homes and the strong feeling that John was there with me on one of the nights that I stayed in his Aunt Mimis house. Then theres the reason why I had to paint Strawberry Field gates and why I needed to safely secure Stuart Sutcliffes headstone back in the ground at Huyton cemetery. Frustration was my only reward when I tried to have a plaque put up to commemorate the time and place where Beatlemania was born, only to have my request turned down. In the last seventeen years I have travelled hundreds of miles around Liverpool, driving and walking down the back Streets that sang out to me, to find the places where John, Paul, George, Ringo and Stuart Sutcliffe lived there lives. This book records the stories I uncovered about them. About the Author I was born in Manchester the late 40s and grew up on the cobbled streets of Harpurhey in a broken home. Eventually I moved in with my Grandma and travelled the country with my uncle Bernard, who sold lamps to fairgrounds up and down the UK. When I was old enough at the age of 14 he put a good word in for me at the garage where he used to have his van serviced and from there I became a skilled mechanic. After 17 years I acquired a job at British Aerospace which is where my interest in the Beatles began. I am now 65 years of age and recently retired from being a janitor at Rochdale fire station, my passion with the four lads and where they grew up is still as strong as ever.

Kurzbeschreibung I was fourteen when I got a job in a garage. I was that passionate about pop music I was always getting in trouble for switching customers car radios on, to listen to the latest songs. For four years in the 1960s I went to the Oasis coffee bar in Manchester to listen to all the best bands and twice tried in vain to get in and listen to this up and coming group called The Beatles. Forty years later I was overcome by a great passion to find out where in Liverpools back streets those four lads grew up to become the biggest band in the world. While wandering the streets of Liverpool over a period of sixteen years my interest in The Beatles was noticed by somebody who worked for the National Trust and who encouraged me to take over the tenure as custodian at the Trusts John Lennon and Paul McCartney childhood homes. Some of the stories in this book are about The Beatles places I discovered and some are about living in the two iconic pop star homes and the strong feeling that John was there with me on one of the nights that I stayed in his Aunt Mimis house. Then theres the reason why I had to paint Strawberry Field gates and why I needed to safely secure Stuart Sutcliffes headstone back in the ground at Huyton cemetery. Frustration was my only reward when I tried to have a plaque put up to commemorate the time and place where Beatlemania was born, only to have my request turned down. In the last seventeen years I have travelled hundreds of miles around Liverpool, driving and walking down the back Streets that sang out to me, to find the places where John, Paul, George, Ringo and Stuart Sutcliffe lived there lives. This book records the stories I uncovered about them. About the Author I was born in Manchester the late 40s and grew up on the cobbled streets of Harpurhey in a broken home. Eventually I moved in with my Grandma and travelled the country with my uncle Bernard, who sold lamps to fairgrounds up and down the UK. When I was old enough at the age of 14 he put a good word in for me at the garage where he used to have his van serviced and from there I became a skilled mechanic. After 17 years I acquired a job at British Aerospace which is where my interest in the Beatles began. I am now 65 years of age and recently retired from being a janitor at Rochdale fire station, my passion with the four lads and where they grew up is still as strong as ever.

ber den Autor und weitere Mitwirkende I was born in Manchester the late 40s and grew up on the cobbled streets of Harpurhey in a broken home. Eventually I moved in with my Grandma and travelled the country with my uncle Bernard, who sold lamps to fairgrounds up and down the UK. When I was old enough at the age of 14 he put a good word in for me at the garage where he used to have his van serviced and from there I became a skilled mechanic. After 17 years I acquired a job at British Aerospace which is where my interest in the Beatles began. I am now 65 years of age and recently retired from being a janitor at Rochdale fire station, my passion with the four lads and where they grew up is still as strong as ever.