But what was her motivation?Von Ein KundeWolfe's book reveals that Marilyn's day-to-day, existence was controlled by gang of card-carrying communists. Her psychiatrist, doctor, housekeeper, handyman, even her final public escort, sometime screenwriter Jose Bolanos, all were dedicated Marxists. Why? And this during the peak years of the cold war. Wolfe offers no explanation. Shouldn't this startling circumstance have aroused suspicion in the FBI, the CIA and among the Kennedys? For me the real question is was she a naive victim or willing accomplice? By this I mean did she deliberately embroil herself in affairs with both Kennedy brothers at the behest of her controllers in order to blackmail them into doing the Kremlin's bidding? Was her death an execution? And if so which faction, the Marxists or the Kennedys carried out the sentence? She was potentially a dangerous witness to both. But when she threatened to reveal all at a press conference whom would she have exposed? This is not just another simple indictment of the Kennedys. The people around her were far more dangerous to her--and to national security--than any possible affairs with either Jack and/or Bobby. At the end she led a strange Manchurian candidate-like existence, watched at all times by Eunice Murray who reported the slightest hint of a mood change to one of the doctors who would quickly sedate her. Inexplicably, she had even stopped driving and relied on Mrs. Murray to chauffeur her. So, she was their virtual prisoner, allowed out only when it suited her captors. She went to work (the producer and screenwriter of that last, unfinished film were also party members) when she was well enough. How else could she have paid the salaries of these sinister hangers-on otherwise? Unfortunately, no one questioned any of this. If the Kennedys were guilty of anything it was lethal criminal negligence--which endangered the United States and the entire free world--for associating with someone who was so obviously a Kremlin pawn. The Marilyn-Jack-Bobby triptych screams setup.

Von Renee H.I plowed through this book a few months ago and I am still talking about it with my friends. The text almost reads like a novel, since it is so well researched that the theories provided by the author make for excellent reading. It is difficult to outline the content of the book without giving too much information away, but suffice it to say that the balance between the sad emotional tale of Marilyn's life and the specific details of her mysterious death are very well explained simultaneously. If you have ever had any curiosity around the life of this American icon, this book is a page turner!

A real page-turner, and it was very difficult to put it down. Like most people who had never read anything in depth on Marilyn Monroe, I was unaware of circumstances surrounding her death. For instance: Robert F. Kennedy was at her home on two separate occasions the day before she died. There was a heated argument between them. Her guest cottage (where she kept her diary in a file cabinet) was broken into that day, and her file cabinet was pruned open, and the diary and other papers was taken, never to be seen again. Another thing that you never hear about was the 700+ page autopsy report which was edited down to 54 pages. A lot of other things were missing, and no one can account for these very important papers. This may all sound very confusing to a person who has never read anything on Marilyn, but trust me, it's a truly riveting book. There's so much information on so many different people, and HOW they played a role in what ultimately cost Marilyn her life. The week before Marilyn died, she attended Cal-Neva (owned by Frank Sinatra and Sam Giancana), which is a ranch-type resort on Lake Tahoe. Sam Giancana was there, along with Peter Lawford, Frank, and others. Marilyn was kept in her room most of the time, and when Joe DiMaggio arrived (Marilyn had called and said she was afraid), they wouldn't let him stay there, and wouldn't put any of his calls through to Marilyn. That weekend, they drugged Marilyn to the point that she was unconscious, then took photos of different men having sex with Marilyn (sort of like an orgy). Frank Sinatra is in these photos, and it's obvious that Marilyn is passed out. (Sinatra's own photographer developed this film, and suggested that Frank burn the photos. Frank didn't want to do that because it was to be used as leverage over Marilyn to make her keep quiet about the Kennedy clan. Remember, Sinatra was a big Kennedy supporter, and this was all for JFK and RFK.) FBI surveillance of Sam Giancana corroborates this story. The whole purpose of the Cal-Neva weekend was to get something on Marilyn so that they could threaten her and make her keep her mouth shut about the dangerous secrets she knew about those wonderful Kennedys. I could go on and on, but all I can say is BUY THIS BOOK! You will be fascinated by it, Marilyn Monroe, and especially Norma Jeane. Kudos to Donald H. Wolfe, who spent 7 years researching and writing this book. It's a masterpiece!

Wolfe has written a startling portrait of the twentieth century's greatest film star that not only redefines her place in entertainment history but also reveals the secret conspiracy that surrounded her last days. Filled with documented revelations, eye-opening information about the dark secret in Marilyn's relationship with John and Robert Kennedy, and shocking details about the many bizarre events that took place at Marilyn's home the day she died, Donald H. Wolfe's remarkable book is the culmination of more than seven years of research. It will change forever the way we view the life and death of this great star.

Pressestimmen Donald Wolfe has far surpassed my exhaustive work and even Anthony Summers' tour de force in 1985. It is the most astonishing work ever to emerge in the literary Monroe sweepstakes. (Peter H. Brown, coauthor of Marilyn: The Last Take) Donald Wolfe has written one of the most absorbing accounts of Marilyn's life to date. (Fred Lawrence Guiles, author of Norma Jean) Admirable! You do not need to agree with all his conclusions to see that Wolfe takes us very close indeed to the dark truth about Monroe, the Kennedys, and that lonely death in the California night.
