Von Rob Davis : The Motherless Oven before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Motherless Oven:

Sehr gut gezeichneter Comic mit sehr schrägem Inhalt. Der Protagonist ist in einer merkwürdigen Welt gefangen. Es gibt quasi nur Schulkinder und wenige alte Personen, die dann Polizisten sind und belter im Rollstuhl aber mit viel Ausdauer fangen... Eltern der Kinder sind mechanische Gebilde, die scheinbar leben. Mehr muss vermutlich jeder selbst herausfinden. Wer auf schräge Ideen und Welten steht wird nicht enttäuscht. Künstlerisch bekommt der Comic von mir 5 Punkte.

Kurzbeschreibung "The Weather Clock said knife o'clock, so I chained Dad up in the shed" In Scarper Lee's world, parents don't make children children make parents. Scarper's father is a wind-powered brass construction whilst his mother is a bakelite hairdryer. It's also a world without birthdays, only deathdays, and Scarper's deathday is fast approaching. With just three weeks left to live, Scarper is forced from his routine and strikes out into the unknown where relationships are tested and authority challenged. An edgy and surreal fantasy from internationally acclaimed writer and artist, Rob Davis, Eisner-nominated for The Complete Don Quixote. The Motherless Oven was awarded the Best Book Prize at the British Comic Awards in 2015.
