The River and I Von William M Graetz The River and I, chronicles in metaphoric imagery John Neihart's open boat navigation of the Great Missouri River for two thousand-miles, from Fort Benton, Montana down to Sioux City, Iowa. Originally commisioned for a magazine the book contains 25 photos and illustrations made on the trip. Young Neihardt views the Missouri River in flood: "... This cruel, invulnerable, restless giant.... This yellow, sinous beast with hell broth slaving from its jaws!... This dare-devil boy-god that sauntered along with a town in its pocket, and a steeped church under its arm for a moment's toy."
